

SportsBoard Partners with Top 96 College Baseball

SportsBoard and Top 96 College Baseball Prospect Camps are thrilled to announce a technology partnership.

Top 96 operates more than 70 baseball prospect camps across the U.S. and will be deploying SportsBoard's mobile player assessment solution throughout its camp operations. College coaches will now record their player evaluations using the SportsBoard Baseball Scout app and then print hard copy evaluation reports to review 1-on-1 with players within minutes after camp ends. Top 96 will also email electronic versions of the coaches' evaluations to each player so they can share it with other coaches.

"This is the way of the future," stated Gregg Jacobs, SportsBoard's founder. "SportsBoard is going to revolutionize camps in all sports, not just baseball, by enabling camps to deliver to its athlete and parent customers' video and PDF evals more quickly and professionally than ever before."

As part of a two-year agreement, SportsBoard replicated Top 96's card-based evaluation methodology into its Baseball Scout app. More than 400 college coaches who work Top 96's camps will be using the app instead of cards to rate player skills, capture spray charts, pitching charts, pop times for catchers, running times using a built-in stop watch and an array of other data. There is even a check-in function for more efficient on-site camp registration.

“Each year we strive to add more value for our players,” stated Dave Callum, co-founder and co-owner of the Top 96. “The Sportsboard Scout app gives our coaches access to leading edge technology that improves the quality of the feedback they provide to the players they are evaluating.”
